SECRET SERVICE.

Misguided Zeal of a Detective in Search of Counterfeiters-Operations of a "Stool Pigeon"-A Case Made Up Against an Innocent Man-The Officer Held for Robbery.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5, 1874. A peculiar trial took place yesterday in the United States District Court, the termination of which has proved to be a magnificent satire upon the secret service of our government, by which, by the unanimous voice of a jury of twelve, one of its principal detectives has been to-day placed under heavy bail for assault and for theit.

The character wno figures most conspicuously in the sequel is one General Monk, who, under orders of Mr. Neddleworth, head of the Secret Service Department at Washington, proceeded to this city some time ago and established his headquarters at

It is a well known fact that our secret service often engage the labors of some one counterfeiter in order to ascertain the movements and whereabouts of others. Hence the fact that Monk and his associates were deta led to this city, and, whereabouts of others. Hence the fact that monk and his associates were detailed to this city, and, for the better milliment of their plans, were ordered to consult with a certain Mr. Goldstein, a noted manipulator of the queer, was neither extraordinary nor unusual.

It so happened that Goldstein had a personal spite against en innocent, simple minded German, named otto Caitz Bergieldt, brought about, according to reliable statements, on account of some difficulty created by moneys and rents, and it was against this man that the stool pigeon directed his inliest tactics. The matter was to be arranged in this wise:—Goldstein was to meet Bergieldt at the appointed place, and force, either by temptation or by fraud, A LARGE AMOUNT OF COUNTERFERT MONEY upon him. He was to then give a signal to General Monk and his men, and they were to rush up, seize him, while the bogus money was upon his glothes. According to this agreement Goldstein persuaded Bergieldt to meet him at the designated place and opened an ordinary conversation. The unsuspecting German told Goldstein that he had $65 in his pocket, with which he designated to purchase a horse. All the while Goldstein was conversing with him Monk and his men were waiting for the signal. Goldstein, pulling a lot of counterfeit money from his pocket, said:—

"What is the use of paring out good money? Here is some paper that will do just as well;" and by additional words tried to prevail upon Bergield to purchase it.

"what is the use of paying out good money? Here is some paper that will do just as well;" and by additional words tried to prevail upon Bergield to purchase it.

Bergield sternly and indignantly refused, and the two passed into a neighboring beer saloon. Here it was that Goldstein slyly forced into Bergield's pockets, without his knowledge of it, the same roil of bogus bills that he had tried to persuade him to purchase upon the street. A certain Mr. Philips, an utter stranger to both parties, saw this very act, and testified to the same before the United States Court. This being done, Goldstein lett Bergleidt, bassed out into the street and gave the signal. General Monk and his heroic companion rusned into the saloon, but Bergleidt was not to be seen. As soon as Goldstein lett Bergleidt, bassed through the rear door to an outhouse, and, chancing to put his hand in his coat pocket he found the counterfeit bills. He at once threw them down the opening of the outhouse, and while doing so was arrested by General Monk. General Monk.

BAD NO WARBART, and consequently no authority. The German hearthly protested, but in vain. He was carried to the Bingham house and locked up in room 107. This was done on March 24, of this year, and the victim was kept there until April 2. Upon his person he had soo in cash. This money General Monk and his friends deprived him of and nev never returned to him since. After keeping him as in a bastile for many, many days General Monk, fearing perhaps that his measures had been somewhat rash, revolved to proceed to any steps in order to manufacture a case against an innocent man. Giving the German in charge of one of his officers, he instructed the latter to take him Algound Among the Counterperters, to see if any of them knew him. This was done on two different occasions, but the counterperters all stated that they had never seen him before. The case was tried vesterday. The jury instantly denombeed the action of General Monk in the most bifter terms as uniswid and inhuman, stating that that the German had been lilegally arrested, had been HELD IN VILEST DUBANCE.

while his persecutors had taken away his money and kept him from his family. The Judge said that all such men as General Monk should at once be discharged from government employ. When Monk appeared upon the street this morning he was arrested by the German for assault and battery and largeny and was held to ball for his appearance at the present term of Court. Before the Alderman were reitersted the lacts given above. No sooner had Monk secured his ball and stepped upon the street than he was arrested the second time upon a "caplas" by the Sheriff and put under other heavy ball. Thus it may be that the cause of the innocent German arrested, brutally treated and put in irons may lodge an impostor clothed in the authority of the United States in the cell of a Pennsylvania Penitentiary.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 5, 1874. The Cheap Transportation Question-

The Democratic Leaders and State Rights. It is an old saying that there are "none so blind as those who will not see," During the last fourteen years we have had many illustrations of this truism from the Bourbon leaders of the democracy in the many defeats to which, with their wilful blindness, they have carried the democratic party. And now they are at it again. For the last two days the Senate has been discussing a resolution from the joint committee on transportation, embracing an appropriation of $200,000 for surveys, in view of a ship canal from the upper Mississippi river to New York, via the great lakes to the St Lawrence, and thence via Lake Champlain, and thence via the Hudson River to our great commercial metropolis; and of proposed trans-Allegheny routes, each for a freight ratiroad or canal connection-first, from the Ohio River across West Virginia and Virginia to the Atlantic seaboard; and second, from the Tennessee River to the Georgia, seaboard; and also for a survey in view of the improvement of the navigation of the Mississippi, particularly at the mouths of the river; and in the discussion of this resolution several of the democratic Senators have flatly committed themselves to the policy of resisting these improvements on the part of the general government as unconstitu tional and dangerous to the reserved rights of the States. In the discussion of this resolution, we say, providing for these surveys, while the republicans have july committed themselves to the policy of pushing to completion the improvements suggested, under appropriations of money or bonds from the national Treasury, the democratic Senators, Saulsbury and Bayard, of Delaware, and Hamilton, of Maryland, opposed these internal imment as broadly in conflict with the great underlying corner stone of our federal system of State rights and as dangerously tending to centralization. Mr. Hamilton, of Maryland, says that this proposed system of internal improvements on the part of Congress is wholly at war with all the democratic doctrines on the subject, as expounded and defended by all our great apostles of democracy from Jefferson to Jackson and from Jackson down to this day. This is true, and there is much truth in this warning of danger as to the reserved rights of the States, but nevertheless the party opposing this proposed system of in-ternal improvements is facing a resistless tide. throughout the West a resistless popular tide has set in for cheap transportation, embracing these suggested improvements, as the first and most important question of the day. In the approaching elections for the next Congress cheap transportation will be the controlling issue in the West and South, and if in these elections the democrats of the Western and Southern States shall follow in the wake of Messrs. Saulsbury, Bayard and Hamilton, of the Senate, they will be routed in perhaps every Congressional district from Minnesota to Louisiana and thence along the seaboard to Virginia. The overwhelming argument in favor of these projected improvements by the national government, this-that these improvements, when com pleted, will enhance the value of of the Northwestern States thou-

ten years will add three or four hundred millions to the national taxations, or so much to the nagrangers are in the field, and they hold the balance

At the meeting of the House Judiciary Committee this morning a motion was made to absolutely dismiss the Durell impeachment case, but several members being absent it was decided that it could not be done in the face of what the committee had aiready decided, and the matter was further po poned until next Tuesday. The committee decided to report arricles of impeachment against Judge Busteed of Alabama, on the charge of being a non-resident of the State. The Reynolds case, which is also the basis of another charge, will be voted upon next Tuesday.

The Committee on Elections, by a vote of 6 against 5, agreed not to report the resolution of Mr. Hazleton, of Wisconsin, reciting that Mr. Cannon had proved to be a polygamist, having married one of his wives since the passage of the anti-polygamy law of 1862, and therefore should be expelled. The committee also voted down the resolution postponing all action in the case; but it is generally believed that the further consideration of the question will be postponed till next
